Company A, 237th Support Battalion ~ Cleveland

Mill, who currently resides in Trumbull County, said she joined the Ohio National Guard because “I wanted to help with anything that happens in the United States as well as overseas.” Mill’s civilian occupation is doing marketing and nutrition at Combat Athlete Performance Academy, which was required to close down because of the pandemic. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Mill is providing food packaging and distribution support to the Greater Cleveland Food Bank in Cleveland. She said the most rewarding part of the mission has been “enjoy(ing) viewing the difference we make and seeing how many people’s lives we’ve impacted. This allows the public to know they can come to us whenever they need help.”

Ohioans serving Ohioans

Ohio National Guard Soldiers and Airmen are members of your community. They are local students, teachers, law enforcement, retail workers, business owners, your co-workers, family, friends and neighbors. When the Ohio National Guard responds to an emergency or natural disaster, it’s Ohioans serving Ohioans right in their own communities. In this series, meet some of the front-line heroes serving during the current COVID-19 relief efforts, as well as a few of our members who’ve supported past humanitarian missions.
