COMPANY B

837TH ENGINEER BATTALION

Company B, 837th Engineer Battalion was organized May 25, 1900 at Spencerville, Ohio as Company F, 2d Infantry Regiment. The company was organized by Capt. Jacob R. Welch and was the first Ohio National Guard unit organized in Spencerville. The company saw active service along the Mexican Border in 1916-1917 and fought in France and Belgium as Company L, 146th Infantry, 37th Division during World War I.

When the state reorganized after the war, Spencerville was home to elements of the 148th Infantry including Company K; Headquarters Company, 2d Battalion; and Company F. In 1938, Leon L. Van Autreve (left) enlisted as a private in the unit, serving until 1940. Van Autreve would later be selected as the 4th Sergeant Major of the Army.

On Oct. 15, 1940, Headquarters Detachment, 2d Battalion, 148th Infantry was inducted into federal service for World War II. After training at Camp Shelby, Miss., and Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa., the unit moved to the Pacific Theater. The 148th served on Fiji and Guadalcanal, and fought battles on New Georgia, Bougainville and Luzon, totaling nearly 600 days in combat. The unit received a Presidential Unit Citation for its part in the Battle of Hill 700 on Bougainville in Mar. 1944. Additionally, the regiment earned the same award for its part in the liberation of Manila in Feb. 1945.

After World War II, the unit reorganized in Spencerville as Headquarters Company, 3d Battalion, 148th Infantry and returned to active duty from 1952 to 1954 for the Korean War. The company trained at Camp Polk, La. and although the unit did not deploy to Korea, nearly all the men rotated in as individual replacements.

Numerous changes impacted the unit in the 1960s and '70s with frequent reorganizations as various elements of the 147th and 148th Infantry were stationed at the armory. In 1961, as Combat Support Company, 2d Battle Group, 148th Infantry, a consolidation with a detachment of the unit stationed in Lima occurred. The Lima unit was organized on Oct. 20, 1919 as Troop E, 1st Cavalry and carried with it World War II service in Europe as Battery A, 987th Field Artillery. In recent years, that battalion was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation for its support of the 30th Infantry Division during the Battle of Mortain, France in Aug. 1944.

On May 1, 1977, the unit was reorganized as Detachment 1, 837th Engineer Company, which was the combat engineer company of the 73d Infantry Brigade. In 1989, the Spencerville Armory was closed and the unit was consolidated with the rest of the 837th Engineer Company in St. Marys. The parent unit was organized July 1, 1908 at St. Marys as Company K, 2d Infantry Regiment. The unit fought in World War I as Company B, 146th Infantry and during World War II as Company K, 148th Infantry.

In 1993, the 73d Infantry Brigade was removed from Ohio's force structure and shortly after, the unit was redesignated as Company D, then Company A, 612th Engineer Battalion. On Nov. 10, 2004, the unit again entered federal service for the War on Terrorism and a mobilization to Iraq. Company A performed difficult route clearing missions and earned the Valorous Unit Award for its role in support of the 3d Infantry Division.

On Sept. 1, 2007, the company was reorganized as Company A, Special Troops Battalion, 37th Infantry Brigade Combat Team (IBCT), and served as the brigade's combat engineer company during a 2008 mobilization in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. The company then deployed to Afghanistan in 2011-2012, where it earned the Meritorious Unit Commendation.

On Sept. 1, 2018, the unit was reorganized as Company B, 837th Engineer Battalion and remained an element of the 37th IBCT. On Sept. 1, 2020, the St. Marys Armory was closed and the unit was moved to Lima.

A color guard, comprised of Soldiers from Company B, 837th Engineer Battalion, 37th Infantry Brigade Combat Team, march forward to post the colors during a memorial dedication ceremony on Nov. 11, 2022, at Memorial Park in St. Marys, Ohio.

MEDAL OF HONOR

Second Lieutenant Robert M. Viale
Company K, 148th Infantry

February 5, 1945 - Manila, Luzon, Philippine Islands

CITATION: He displayed conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty. Forced by the enemy's detonation of prepared demolitions to shift the course of his advance through the city, he led the 1st platoon toward a small bridge, where heavy fire from 3 enemy pillboxes halted the unit. With 2 men he crossed the bridge behind screening grenade smoke to attack the pillboxes. The first he knocked out himself while covered by his men's protecting fire; the other 2 were silenced by 1 of his companions and a bazooka team which he had called up. He suffered a painful wound in the right arm during the action. After his entire platoon had joined him, he pushed ahead through mortar fire and encircling flames. Blocked from the only escape route by an enemy machine gun placed at a street corner, he entered a nearby building with his men to explore possible means of reducing the emplacement. In 1 room he found civilians huddled together, in another, a small window placed high in the wall and reached by a ladder. Because of the relative positions of the window, ladder, and enemy emplacement, he decided that he, being left-handed, could better hurl a grenade than 1 of his men who had made an unsuccessful attempt. Grasping an armed grenade, he started up the ladder. His wounded right arm weakened, and, as he tried to steady himself, the grenade fell to the floor. In the 5 seconds before the grenade would explode, he dropped down, recovered the grenade and looked for a place to dispose of it safely. Finding no way to get rid of the grenade without exposing his own men or the civilians to injury or death, he turned to the wall, held it close to his body and bent over it as it exploded. 2d Lt. Viale died in a few minutes, but his heroic act saved the lives of others.

HERALDIC ITEMS

DISTINCTIVE UNIT INSIGNIA

Description/Blazon: A Silver color metal and enamel device 1 1/8 inches (2.86 cm) in height overall consisting of a shield blazoned as follows: Per bend Gules and Azure issuing from chief four billets Argent, in sinister chief a mullet Or radiating to dexter base two lightning flashes of the third; overall on a bend of the last a tomahawk Sable below in chief a torteau fimbriated Argent. Attached below the device a black tri-partite motto scroll inscribed "BOW TO NONE" in silver letters.

Symbolism: Shawnee Chief Tecumseh, head of the Indian inhabitants who first occupied the part of Ohio where the unit is now stationed, is represented by the star in reference to his name, meaning "Shooting Star," and by the pipe tomahawk, which symbolizes also the warrior spirit of the unit. The motto of the Special Troops Battalion, "Bow To None," is taken from a speech by Tecumseh. The lightning flashes represent the communications and electronic warfare missions of the unit and denote speedy response to mission requirements. Black and white (silver) signify the ability of the unit to function night and day. The embattled top edge of the shield recalls the unit's engineer function, scarlet indicates courage and sacrifice. The scarlet roundel with white edging is taken from the flag of the State of Ohio and pays tribute to the 37th "Buckeye" Division.

Background: The distinctive unit insignia was approved on 1 November 2007. It was redesignated 1 September 2018 for the 837th Engineer Battalion.
